PRESIDENT EISENHOWER REPORTS: Geneva Proved To World U.S. Seeks Path Of Peace

Deep Gulf Still Exists

'Prayerful Patience, Courage And Tolerance' Needed To Spur East-West Unity

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Eisenhower declared Monday night that the Geneva conference brought "a sharpened realization by the world that the United States will go to any length, consistent with our concepts of decency, justice and right, to obtain peace."

Reporting to the people by radio and television one day after his return from the Big Four sessions, the chief executive said that everyone there felt "the great longing of mankind" for peace.

While he said that a week of friendly and even fruitful negotiation cannot close the wide, deep gulf between East and West, he believes that the spark kindled at Geneva can be kept alive through "prayerful patience, courage, tolerance and eternal vigilance."

Peace Lamp May Shine

If that is done, he said, the lamp of lasting peace at last may be lit.

The real test of what was accomplished at Geneva, Eisenhower said, will come at the forthcoming foreign ministers conference in October.

In the weeks ahead, he said, the American government will exhaustively survey the "many perplexing problems" arising from the pursuit of peace.

Informal Talk

In a chatty, informal talk to the nation from his oval office in the White House, the chief executive said that even now there exists "a better understanding and a closer unity among the nations of NATO" — the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"There seems to be a growing realization by all," he said, "that nuclear warfare pursued to the ultimate could be practically race suicide."

There is realization, too, he said, that negotiations can be conducted "without propaganda and threats and invectives."

Any Decent Lengths

And, at that point, he spoke of America's willingness to go to any lengths to obtain peace, in line with its ideas of decency, justice and right.

"For this purpose," he said, "we will work co-operatively with the Soviets and any other people as long as there is sincerity of purpose and a genuine desire to go ahead."

Eisenhower cautioned against discouragement, yet did not "belittle the obstacles lying ahead on the road to a secure and just peace."

New Spirit Voiced

He said at Geneva each side assured the other earnestly and often, that it intended to pursue a new spirit of conciliation and co-operation in its contacts with the others.

The time when "reconciliation and some giving on each side will be definitely necessary," the President said, is at the October foreign ministers' conference, when efforts will be made to translate the generalities of Geneva into "actual specific agreements."

Probably no question on the official agenda in the Swiss city, Eisenhower said, caused as much trouble as that of German reunification and European security.

The President appeared before the television cameras in a business suit with a vest. From time to time during his 15-minute talk he glanced down at notes on his desk, occasionally donning glasses as he did so.

Visible to the TV audience behind the chief executive was a photograph of Mrs. Eisenhower, who accompanied him to the Geneva meeting.

Single Problem

The President said it was thought at first that the German and European questions could be dealt with separately. But the American delegation concluded they had to be dealt with as one, that Germany should be reunited under a freely chosen government under conditions that would provide security for nations of both East and West.

Referring to his own surprise proposal to trade blueprints of military establishments with Russia and to provide mutual reconnaissance of these establishments by aerial photography, Eisenhower er said there was a dual purpose: To convince everyone of "Western sincerity in seeking peace," and to set up this kind of inspection in hopes it might lead to a broader type and to "an effective and durable disarmament system."

Satellites Discussed

In unofficial meetings with the Soviet delegation, Eisenhower said he and Secretary of State Dulles "specifically brought up more than once American convictions and American beliefs, American concern about such questions as the satellites of Eastern Europe and the activities of international communism."

"We made crystal clear what America believes about such matters as these."

Red China, U.S. Okay Envoy Talks

Geneva Conference
Will Start Monday

WASHINGTON (AP)— The United States, in a move to reduce Far East tension, agreed Monday to a special conference with Red China. It will begin Monday in Geneva, Switzerland.

The meeting announced simultaneously in Washington and Peking, will bring together special ambassadors of the two countries, for the first time, to discuss outstanding problems.

The State Department said the conference does not "involve diplomatic recognition" of Red China. The announcement said the ambassadors would discuss "repatriation of civilians" and how to "facilitate further discussions and settlements of certain other practical matters now at issue between both sides."

Johnson Named

The State Department said U. Alexis Johnson, American ambassador to Communist Czechoslovakia, would represent the United States at the talks. Johnson, one of the department's top Far East experts, will fly to Washington to consult with Secretary Dulles before going to Geneva.

The State Department emphasized that the key topic would be return of some 51 Americans now held in Communist China.

Red China is interested in the return of 124 Chinese students who have been trained here in scientific and other fields. The U. S. has lifted a ban against their return to Red China.

Sioux City Pulls For Red Visit

No Plan Switch
Wanted By Iowans

By TOM WHITNEY

HUMBOLDT, Ia. (AP)— At least one Iowa community is calling on the state's political big guns to make certain the traveling Russian farm leaders do not change original plans to visit this city.

It is reliably learned from Americans accompanying the Russians that some local leaders at Sioux City requested Iowa's Republican Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper to ask the Iowa Department of Agriculture to get Soviet acting Minister of Agriculture V. F. Matskevich to come to their town.

Matskevich and his Russian farm group, according to initial plan, were to go to Sioux City and look over the stockyards there.

More recently, in an effort to give the Russians more time to study special subjects of particular interest, the American planners of the Russian tour cut out the Sioux City visit.

Shuttle Plans

There was an immediate protest. Sioux City had been preparing to receive the Russians and wanted them to come. Sioux City people reportedly went to Hickenlooper.

The result: The American coordinators for the Russians, since they do not want to disappoint any one, may fly a representation from the Russian group to the western Iowa city in a chartered plane. Plans for the shuttle operation are being worked out.

The Russians and the Americans conducting their tour are finding that disappointment is caused by changes in plans. Such is the interest in their visit that communities feel slighted when there are changes in the program.

Thus, for instance, on Saturday when Matskevich announced suddenly in Iowa Falls that instead of staying overnight there with local families as had been planned, he must return to Ames, no little feeling was generated. As a compromise, after much discussion, the Russians left two of their number in Iowa Falls overnight though Matskevich himself did return to Ames.

Monday the Russians were traveling in three groups.

The Democratic-sponsored bill given legislative right-of-way calls for $12,400,000 in new automotive taxes to help finance the new roads.

The Eisenhower administration has proposed financing the road construction through long term bonds.

Under the procedure adopted by the Rules Committee, no amendments from the floor will be permitted to the tax section of the bill. This measure previously had been approved by the House Public Works Committee.

A Chance

The Republicans will still have a chance to propose a single substitute financing plan. House Republican Leader Martin (Mass.) said he'll push the taxless alternative proposed by Eisenhower.

The administration substitute will be offered by Rep. Dondero (R-Mich.).

House Republicans agreed informally at a GOP conference during the afternoon to back the Dondero-administration bill for financing the super highway system through 30 year bonds.

Rep. Steed (D-Okl.) urged the Rules Committee to permit the tax-financed highway bill to be subject to amendments from the floor, so that sponsors of less heavy taxes on the trucking industry could propose changes.

But the Rules Committee rejected the request.

Steed predicted that the "bill as it now stands will not pass the House."

Chairman Smith (D-Va.) of the Rules Committee later told newsmen there had been "a lot of argument" among Rules Committee members about clearing the bill under procedures denying amendment to the tax raising provisions.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Fallon (D-Md.), calls for nearly 50 billion dollars worth of federal and state road building over the next 13 years. The biggest item would be 24 billion dollars for federal aid in completing a 40,000 mile system of interstate super highways.

AMERICANS BRING RAIN TO ODESSA

ODESSA, Soviet Union (AP)— A delegation of American farmers touring Russia arrived at this Black Sea port Monday, bringing a welcome rain with them.

Arriving by air, the Americans hardly had time to shake hands and receive floral bouquets from the welcoming delegation when the downpour started and the whole group had to scamper to the airport restaurant.

The Russians were jubilant. "It is you who brought us rain in a good time," said the chairman of a Soviet collective farm, addressing William Lambert, dean of agriculture at the University of Nebraska and head of the American delegation. "This will help our harvest—and I mean corn."

The American farmers and their hosts had to stay in the airport building for an hour until the rain slackened. They then went to visit the Lysenko Genetics Institute here.

-Salk Shots-

Vaccine Arrives Today

Lancaster Plans
Still Not Definite

A shipment of 60,003 cubic centimeters of Salk polio vaccine is to arrive in Lincoln by air at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday, Dr. E. A. Rogers, state health director, said.

The vaccine is part of a shipment of nearly a million shots sent by air Monday to 10 states from Eli Lilly and Co. of Indianapolis, Ind.

The shipment is to be used for completion of two-shot immunization of first and second grade school children under sponsorship of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The vaccine was part of the supply declared safe by the U.S. Public Health Service. It was ordered shipped to Lincoln and other cities by the NFIP.

The vaccine will be distributed to counties requesting it. Dr. Rogers said, "We will try to honor all requests as long as we have enough vaccine." Nebraska has been promised 90 per cent of the amount received for the first shots.

Demand Surprising

It had been expected that requests for second shots would be less than for the first shots, due to adverse national publicity and the fact that school is not in session. However, a surprising demand for second Salk inoculations was developing in Nebraska.

In Lincoln, about 7,500 children are expected to receive the second shot. Eighty-six hundred children got the first shot and are entitled to the second dose, Dr. James T. Googe, county health director, said.

Lancaster County will receive an allocation of the newly-arrived shipment on the basis of the number expected to return for the second shot.

Dr. Googe said Lancaster County will probably claim its supply within a day or two, when the schedule has been made up. Plans must be made with parents and doctors, he said.

There still has been no decision whether to administer the second shots to Lancaster County children at this time or wait until September or October, Dr. Googe said.

Whatever plan is made must be approved by the Lancaster County Polio Vaccination Committee which has been set up to control the program. Dr. John Brown is chairman of that committee.

Dr. Googe said the level of immunization in the county is good now, and if the second shots are delayed a month or two, the period of immunization will be extended longer.

However, he said, if it is a matter of getting the vaccine now or never, the shots will be administered as soon as the county gets the vaccine.

Of the first 25 counties in the state responding to queries from Dr. Rogers, 23 have indicated they planned to go ahead with second shots as soon as vaccine is available.

Russian Girls Wear Pigtails, Too

nearly all young girls in Russia wear pigtails. The delegation will visit the University of Nebraska College of Agriculture tractor testing laboratory in Lincoln Monday. For a story on the group's Nebraska itinerary, see Page 6. (AP Wirephoto.)

Army To Arrest 3 Turncoats Friday

Ex-GIs To Be Court-Martialed
After Arrival From Red China

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pentagon officials said Monday that the Army will arrest—and later court-martial—three turncoat former American prisoners of war as soon as their ship docks in San Francisco next Friday.

The Army's decision, ending weeks of legal uncertainty about what could be done about the trio, was taken after intensive consultations with the State and Justice Department, the officials said.

The three Americans who were captured in the Korean fighting, turned their backs on their country and then changed their minds, are William C. Cowart, 22, Dalton, Ga.; Lewis W. Griggs, 22, Jacksonville, Tex.; and Otho G. Bell, 24, Hillsboro, Miss., and Olympia, Wash. They refused repatriation after the Korean armistice and went to Red China instead.

The three former soldiers are now aboard the President Cleveland sailing homeward on the last leg of their journey.

An official announcement setting forth the Army's plans for the three is expected some time this week. Meanwhile Pentagon officials told a reporter how the Army's decision will be carried out.

Aiding Enemy

Army officers will board the liner at San Francisco with customs and immigration officials. The men will be summoned, informed that they are under military arrest and told that they will be held on various charges, including aiding the enemy and misconduct as prisoners.

The arresting officials will emphasize that the Army action has nothing to do with the fact that the three originally refused to come home. Under the terms of the armistice they can not be tried for choosing to go to or remain in another country.

The men also will be told that they may see any members of their families who are in San Francisco to meet them. Any place aboard the vessel or at spots near the docks to be designated by the Army.

The Pentagon has heard unofficially that members of the family of at least one of the three men plan to go to San Francisco.

The proposed inter-state highway system — which will be paid for with 90 per cent federal money if a current bill in Congress passes — came under the eyes of the state Highway Advisory Commission Monday.

At the meeting the Commission was told that boosters for specific routes over the state were becoming active. Especially were boosters for Nebraska Highway 92 seeking support to have that route designated the inter-state road. Nebr. 92 runs west from Omaha through Wahoo and Central City to Loup City and Ansley, then west to Arthur.

But wording of the present bill provides that the system shall be a "defense" highway and caused some concern on interpretation.

The original plan, as outlined by the Bureau of Public Roads, would have the highway meet the Iowa system near Omaha and come to

School Land Board Again Cites Leaseholder In Pierce County

Adolph Polinske of Madison, a Pierce County school land leaseholder, Monday was ordered for the second time to show cause at a hearing why his school land lease should not be cancelled for alleged failure to comply with board orders.

The state Board of Educational Lands and Funds set the hearing for Aug. 8, date of its next regular meeting.

Polinske was called in for a hearing last May to answer charges that his lease was overgrazed and that cattle were allowed to roam through "blown out" areas.

After the hearing, the board advised Polinske that it would continue the lease if he would fence in the "blown out" areas, reduce the number of cattle grazed and arrange to enter into an agreement with the local soil conservation service district.

Steps Not Taken

Board Chairman Tom Coffey reported to the board, Monday that cattle have been removed from the land but the other steps have not been taken.

Polinske appeared personally before the board and asked permission to assign the lease to Ernest Strate Jr., of Hoskins. The board took the view however, that the lease should be cancelled and sold anew to the highest bidder.

The board also discussed Monday proposed regulations for uranium prospecting on state-owned school lands.

One request for a uranium lease on a specific tract in Dawes County has been received, along with several general inquiries. Action on proposed regulations was deferred.

Bonus Bids

Under discussion was an arrangement where leases would be offered at auction for bonus bids. In addition, a charge of 10 cents an acre would be made and in the event uranium were discovered, the state would collect a royalty of 10 per cent. The royalty on other minerals of worth would be 5 per cent.

The terms are only tentative and

Ex-Deputy Hurt In Train-Car Wreck

A former Lancaster County deputy sheriff suffered minor injuries Monday when his car rammed into a passenger train engine about a mile southeast of Raymond.

Injured was Mark Meyers, about 33, who was treated for a chin cut and left leg bruise at St. Elizabeth Hospital. He was later released.

Lt. J. E. Kruger, State Safety Patrolman, said Meyers' car smashed head-on into a Union Pacific train as it headed into Lincoln. Meyers was westbound and the train was headed south, Kruger said.

Kruger identified the train engineer as F. L. Bletcher of Beatrice. Meyers lives near Raymond and worked until recently as a deputy sheriff for Lancaster County.

Daughter-In-Law Of Gen. Donovan Is Found Dead

SOUTH DARTMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Mrs. Mary Donovan, 37, wife of David R. Donovan of Berryville, Va., was found dead Monday at the summer home of her father-in-law, Maj. Gen. William J. Wild Bill Donovan, wartime head of the Office of Strategic Services.

Medical Examiner William Rosen withheld a cause-of-death verdict.

Police Chief James S. Hervey said "we are pretty well satisfied there is no violence connected with the death."

Mrs. Donovan's mother-in-law found the body. She notified a family physician and police.

The dead woman is the mother of five children, ranging in age from twins of 6 to a daughter of 14. Her husband was notified in Berryville.

Abel Gets Hard Surface Pact

The state Highway Department has awarded to Abel Construction Co., Lincoln, a $249,456 contract to bituminous surface seven miles of Lancaster County road north from U.S. 34 at Woodlawn to two miles north of the Raymond spur.

Deputy State Engineer Henry Schlitt explained that this improvement of Neb. 79 had been delayed because the bid was higher than the department estimate and other specifications had to be cleared with the Federal Bureau of Roads.

This is the first link of an all weather road from southern Saunders County into Lincoln.

Smith-Dorsey Co. Seeks Tax Refund

The Smith-Dorsey Co. of Lincoln has filed three suits in Lancaster District Court seeking a refund of $7,339 paid as 1951 personal property taxes.

Defendants are Lancaster County, city of Lincoln and Sanitary District No. 1.

The firm contends it was erroneously assessed 1951 personal taxes on $461,056, representing the net cost of goods sold rather than its 1951 inventory of $67,432.

Judgments are asked against the county for $1,907; the city, $4,644, and the sanitary district, $787.

The decision on whether or not Nebraska will get its proposed atomic energy reactor power plant is pending action by the Atomic Energy Commission, The Star learned Monday.

Although final official action on the construction of six atomic power plants, including one for Nebraska, was expected soon, it was not learned when the announcement officially would be made.

According to the Associated Press, no decision has been made regarding AEC approval for atomic reactor plants. An AEC spokesman told AP that he knew nothing of any statement made by AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss that the official announcement would be made this week.

Strauss could not be located for comment.

Another AEC spokesman contacted by The Star declined to comment on when the construction okay may be released.

Curtis Hopeful

Senator Carl Curtis (R-Neb) told the Star he had no information regarding the announcement. He said he was following developments closely and from all indications it "looks favorable" that the Nebraska plant will be confirmed.

The Senate Appropriations Committee restored all atomic energy funds cut by House action and increased the total amount. The House had earlier deleted some of the funds and recommended $166,477,000 for AEC expenses and plant expansion. The Senate committee restored the amount to $273,700,000. However, the Senate bill does not specify funds for any of the six proposed plants specifically.

The proposed Nebraska plant, which will probably be located somewhere south of Lincoln if approved, will be built by Consumer's Public Power District. Its capacity would be 75,000 kilowatts.

A Senate-House conference on the supplemental appropriations was to wind up work on the bill by the end of the week.

However, both the AEC spokesman and Sen. Curtis said that the final decision on the construction of atomic reactor plants was awaiting AEC decision and not Congressional action on funds.

Sen. Curtis said he thought the AEC already had funds for construction.

More Resources Pressure

Sen. Carl T. Curtis put in a plug for Nebraska when he asked the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy to give urgent thought to dispersion of the nation's defense industry.

He pointed to the available resources of the Middle West where security is believed to be a little better and where the domestic economy, now overwhelmingly agricultural, could stand more diversification.

It was a heads-on suggestion and served a purpose in refreshing the committee's mind on a subject pursuing a long path with innumerable wayside problems. We hope it leads to action.

Meantime, there are bits of groundwork that would make dispersion of industry to Nebraska more realistic and easy. One would be to touch up the Atomic Energy Commission on Nebraska's proposal to build an atomic electric generating plant. Another would be greater pressure to transmit needed and cheap electric energy from the Missouri Basin dams into the state. Nebraska has not been too successful the past two years in obtaining federal aid in tapping those vast sources of public power.

Industry must have quantities of dependable, reasonably priced power and solid assurance that it always will be available. That is as primary as suitable manpower and water. One need only look at the TVA area and its great installations of defense industry and recall that prior to TVA the region offered small inducement to industry. So while our representatives are urging diversification for Nebraska and dispersion of industry for national security, a companion task out here is to mobilize our greatest potential of basic industrial resources. And time is of the essence. We are making progress well enough but too slowly.

Russia's Sincere Desire

Of Men And Things

By J. E. LAWRENCE

PALOS VERDES ESTATES, Calif.—Earlier we had mentioned that we were taking to luncheon a Greek soldier of fortune in the best tradition, a member of one of the older families of Greece, an appealing, attractive, and in the spirit of adventure, a gallant fighter. He was a part of the Greek underground in World War II. His credentials are not easy to question. He was there. He lived dangerously, and in the living lost all of his worldly goods with the exception of a home overlooking the blue waters of the sea. He told us of one particularly exciting adventure which for understandable reasons he pledged us not to retell. His name is Alex Lambros.

We trust that the captain will not be sensitive when we mention the let-down feeling we experienced when he placed a condition upon his story of adventure. In its absence your correspondent can report that when the afternoon finished he came to the conclusion that he had spent a few hours in the atmosphere of what for better words may be described as the American "Melting Pot."

That Let-Down Feeling

Captain Lambros is Greek, and thoroughly continental from the low, courteous bow, the kissing of hands, and what-not. He is also exciting in conversation, frequently penetrating in his criticisms of what he regards and argues with a great deal of logic as mistaken notions of basic abstract principles of democracy. He can push you back in the chair and give you an incredible amount of American history, world intrigue, and personal experience. At the end invariably he closes with what you accept as a genuine expression of devotion to democracy, and more particularly of devotion to his adopted country, where he and his 14-year-old son lived for the past five years. He must have read a great deal about Thomas Jefferson. His knowledge of the man and of Jefferson's contribution to human freedom is positively uncanny. He can talk Jeffersonian ideals by the hour, and his discussions could be a bit exhausting for a sleepy man.

We no longer talk of the "Melting Pot." It seems a long, long distance away but actually it was not so many years ago when the stock that we speak of as American was streaming to this land to take advantage of its opportunities and frequently to become so thoroughly saturated as to provide it with a source of strength and inspiration. Grecian civilization is old. It must have been a great privilege to sit at the feet of Socrates or Aristotle and the other old philosophers. They lived and died in the golden age of Greece when it held aloft proudly the torch of knowledge and wisdom.

We are reminded, however, that the earth is for those who live, and not the dead. Great as the glories of the past may have been, greater still can be the glories of the future. That was a bit of the captain's philosophy—courageously struggling back from the painful memories of an invaded country, from the physical discomforts and chilling mental torture of spending four years in an atmosphere where you did not know from one minute to the other when a neighbor would betray you and the invader would hustle you off to a prison yard where you would be shot. Few of us have known what it is to hide in the cold and the darkness, possibly trembling, while listening for the sounds upon the steps or anticipating that in the next minute the door would swing open and in would march the guard. Once again to breathe free air, where all this apprehension, fear, and uncertainty no longer prevails is, in all of its sheer simplicity, what a certain cartoonist invariably depicted as a very wonderful feeling. We simply say that we found Captain Lambros a delightful gentleman who on his own steam has picked up an amazing amount of the English language, who bears himself with dignity, and who surprisingly seems to have more knowledge of American background than those of us who have been here from the cradle to what we choose to call the mental grave.

Forward We March

Human flesh has its mutually-shared qualities. Ambition is the common possession of most men. Mind and soul are as distinctive as this vast country's natural beauties spread themselves before the eye. Where one's family goes back to the unfolding history of a nation that knew greatness as well as struggle, there can be a great deal more sensitivity. We wish the good captain was a bit more optimistic about the European scene, the events at Geneva, more particularly about Europeans, but if he isn't then it is not difficult to understand. The golden age faded and in its fading came travail and darkness. Bismarck once said that he who controlled Southeast Europe stood astride the world. The captain has a notion, which he hopes will not come true, that the stormy Balkans may break out into flames again.

friendliness, and a willingness to sit down together to work out differences.

If the President has correctly analyzed the feelings in the hearts of the Russian leaders, then if for no other reason the Geneva conference must be written down in history as an especially timely and altogether rewarding event.

Only the naive and the unrealistic could have expected that by some happy alchemy not generally found in human and international relations, the West and the East could make deep-seated differences of interest and points of view vanish at Geneva. And only a wistful thinker can cling to the idea that peace can come by one easy, dramatic stroke.

It was significant that the conferences brought into sharp relief important points of difference. The problems were presented. Attempted solutions can go forward from here. But it is indeed important that both the West and the East feel a sincere desire to conduct their quest in an atmosphere of friendliness and zeal.

The presentation of the problems and a mutual willingness to go after them constructively is a calculable gain. Where such can lead is an exciting thought. Judged by initial proposals the Geneva conference was not greatly rewarding. No treaties were drawn; no binding decisions came forth. If there were preconceived hopes and plans, they were relatively unimportant. Great events always yield products but seldom as anticipated. But in event of Geneva, if President Eisenhower has correctly sensed Russian wishes, good results as yet undefined will come forth.

Not Alarming Yet

The Minneapolis Tribune admits that it is nice to back in reports of national prosperity, stock market booms, greater national income than ever and more industrial production. But it detects a thorn in an otherwise pleasant nest. It notes that while business is booming delinquent bills are booming right along with it.

The Tribune is expressing an old fear, that spending is outrunning earnings, that ultimately the gap may become so wide that business will have to stop.

This is the formula of the depression of the thirties—a nation spending faster than it earned, bargaining away future earnings until nothing was left. Perhaps it will happen again. But certainly it will not happen in the pre-depression pattern. Much of the correcting occurring by legislation during the post-depression period established a flexibility and new protective devices in the national economy which now counterpose the quick-bust process. Today the nation is constructively employed making and absorbing countless goods and services, working in strength and good health. The present disparity in earning and paying might be a symptom of graver things to come. But at this time it appears more as a temporary imbalance that should correct itself.

Very Good News

Nebraska is constructing new homes and business buildings at a rate 2½ times that of 1948, according to the July report of the College of Business Administration of the University of Nebraska.

The state is also in advance of a year ago in retail sales.

Such news is always reassuring and Nebraska can take special interest in the construction figures for its 2½ times jump over 1948 which contrasts with a national average of one and a half. Lincoln, itself, is contributing heavily to the state averages.

Why the heavy surge at this time? Perhaps Nebraska had a belated start. Perhaps it had more construction to do. And again perhaps the great home owning tradition of the Middle West simply shows itself in the outranking figures. But this much can be said: a state that builds up leading percentages in home construction is one whose people have faith in the future and a taste for permanence. There can be no better augury for the future than this.

Eden Loses Out As Power Broker

GENEVA — In any summary of results of the Big Four Conference, two important things stand out:

1. Prime Minister Anthony Eden, who was responsible for calling the conference, failed to be its dominant leader. He lost out completely to the charm and the spontaneous, sometimes impetuous, diplomacy of President Eisenhower. More important he lost the balance-of-power position of an honest broker between the USA and the USSR which Winston Churchill so long occupied.

2. Eisenhower, with his dramatic air-reconnaissance inspection plan, reverted in principle to the Russian-American alliance which Marshal Stalin proposed toward the end of World War II and which Roosevelt rejected.

Though they didn't say so publicly, Ike's proposal scared the British half out of their wits. It also so horrified the German observers here that they contacted Chancellor Konrad Adenauer the night after Ike's air - inspection speech to warn against Germany's being left out in the cold by Russian-American friendship and that Adenauer himself had better do some dealing on the side with Russia.

For President Eisenhower, in launching his dramatic air-inspection plan, had deliberately ignored the French and British and proposed that Russia and the United States, in effect, guarantee the peace of the world.

Toward the end of World War II Stalin proposed to Roosevelt that their two countries form an alliance and literally divide up the world between them. Stalin's blunt reasoning was that there were only two strong powers left in the world — Russia and the United States. Therefore, if they agreed to dominate the world, they could run it their own way and keep the peace.

Around Roosevelt were advisers who leaned toward accepting Stalin's idea, among them Harry Hopkins and Ambassador Joseph Davies. They believed the United States should be realistic, that the might of the British Empire was waning, and if the United States worked out an alliance with Russia the peace of the world would be guaranteed for many years.

Averell Harriman and Jimmy Forrestal were opposed to Stalin's plan, but its most vigorous opponent was Winston Churchill who, all during the war, had needed Roosevelt against Russia. Roosevelt, in the end, vetoed the Stalin plan and adopted the collective security of the United Nations which included all the allies plus the smaller nations.

However, Roosevelt suggested that Stalin and Churchill might agree on certain areas and a division of the Balkans was actually worked out at Teheran between Stalin and Churchill whereby Russia took into its sphere of influence Rumania and Bulgaria, with Britain taking over Greece and Yugoslavia. Stalin even advised Churchill that the man who really controlled Yugoslavia was Tito and it was this deal at Teheran that caused the United States and Britain to confound the world by deserting Draja Mikailovitch for Tito.

Growing irritations toward the end of the war finally disrupted this agreement and many diplomatic observers believe it was Stalin's suspicion of Roosevelt's refusal to form an alliance that contributed heavily to the bitterness that erupted around V-E day. Stalin's suspicious Asiatic reasoning led him to the conclusion that, if the United States wouldn't form an alliance for world spheres of influence, then it must automatically seek to disrupt Russian spheres.

President Eisenhower hadn't the slightest thought of forming any Russian alliance when he made his air-inspection proposal at Geneva. He believed the two most powerful nations which hold the world's peace in the palms of their hands should get together to keep the peace. Nevertheless, his proposal plus the new personal friendships formed by Ike with the Russians, caused a lot of worry among the allied diplomats who believe in divide and rule.

IKE HIS OWN BROKER

It was Eden, worried over winning the British election and achieving his great ambition to be Prime Minister of England, who finally persuaded Dulles last April to consent to the Big Four meeting. But it was the same Eden who took a back seat completely during the conference he inspired.

It was shortly after Roosevelt's death that Churchill came to Fulton, Missouri, in 1946, and, on the same platform with President Truman, launched a bitter denunciation of Russia. That speech marked an important period in power politics. Before it, under Roosevelt, the United States held the balance of power and played Russia off against Britain. After that speech, Britain held the balance of power and has been playing the United States off against Russia.

And, having forgotten his own bitter attack on Russia at Fulton, Churchill for three years has been urging Eisenhower to attend a Big Four Conference to patch up the West's friendship with Russia. Churchill, once the attacker and provocateur, had become peace-maker.

But when that long-awaited conference was held here, Anthony Eden lost out in his role of honest broker. Eisenhower stepped forward to do his own negotiating and to handle his own brokerage business for international peace. It looks like the United States will hold the balance of power from now on.

Nixon In Background, Star May Be Waning

WASHINGTON — The controversial vice president of the United States, young Mr. Richard Nixon, is currently out of the headlines. This may mean much or little, but it is a subject of intense discussion in quarters where men habitually wet their fingers to see which way the political winds are blowing.

There is some reason to believe that the subject of Nixon's value to the ticket in 1956 is being discussed in the business and public relations circles around the President. Tip sheets have suggested he will enter a hugely lucrative practice of law. He is not being sought out as he was formerly, and it has been quite some time since he made a key speech on policy for the administration, such and his "maybe troops to Indo-China" remarks to the editors or his answer on foreign policy to Adlai Stevenson.

Republican politicians answer that so far as they are aware, he is still very deeply in the President's confidence. He attends the conferences. GOP congressional leaders hold weekly with the President.

Those leaders were told that the vice president would be the channel through which Eisenhower would transmit his promised reports to Congress from Geneva during the week spent there. They, themselves, do not ask him to do any business for them; they prefer to handle their own.

Significantly, the President's latest remarks in connection with the vice presidency were in assertion of the President's right to choose his running mate. The professionals agreed that that was that; they have been and will continue their own careful public silence. Nixon's friends hailed it as proof positive that the ticket would again be Eisenhower and Nixon. They have possibly suggested to him that, since he appeared to be in such good shape, it might be better if he did keep his head down for awhile.

Nixon, who has come so far so fast, is naturally an object of some rivalry among other ambitious Republicans. This has been best advertised in his contest for power in their state of California with Senate Republican Leader Knowland. But there are others who privately think they would do much more to add strength to the ticket next year.

Republican politicians tend to defend Nixon. They like his partnership and only wish Eisenhower were more so. They point out that Nixon displayed sound political judgment early this year when he repeatedly warned the party it was not nearly as strong as Eisenhower. Now that GOP criticism of Ike has simmered to a mere mutter, they give Nixon credit.

There is not the slightest chance that an anti-Nixon move can be organized among the professionals unless the President signals it. The right wing especially does not forget how he zealously shuttled between the White House and McCarthy, attempting to keep that connection in order. It does not blame him for the outcome.

Even if ambitious Republican aspirants threw caution to the winds and decided to try for what would be potentially an immensely valuable place, they probably would not get far.

Running for vice president is roughly the equivalent of eye-gouging at a tennis match, in U.S. opinion. It's just not done. In part this may be because originally the vice president was the man who received the second highest number of votes for president.

The Democratic verdict on Nixon remains: Pure poison.

Garden Glances With The Moon

I meant to do my work today—
But a brown bird sang in the apple tree,
And a butterfly flitted across the field
And all the leaves were calling me.
—Richard Le Gallienne

Today's July second lunar quarter begins and the waxing moon has already entered the fixed, watery and exceedingly fruitful sign, Scorpio, as you read this. Thursday afternoon at 4:25 it will enter the flexed, fiery and barren sign, Sagittarius. And very early Sunday morning it will enter the movable earthy, dry and semi-fruitful sign, Capricorn.

The bright orange flowers of Asclepias, tuberosa now grace our garden, attracting butterflies of every hue and size, and taking me back to other summers long gone but pleasantly remembered.

Our picture today is one taken perhaps 35 years ago on a rocky knoll down in Richardson County near the Kansas state line where A. tuberosa grew wild and bloomed each July into August in great orange drifts fairly alive with nectar-sipping butterflies.

I am at the left and my sister, Cyrene, to the far right with Ruth and Adele Wirth between. In case you are interested, I made the dress I'm wearing. It was red and white checked tissue gingham with white organdy collar, cuffs and pocket trim. The pockets look low compared to 1955 styles, but were exactly where I wanted them and must have then been considered good fashion. How ingeniously I toiled with that scalloped hem and faced it with organdy! Cyrene's was much easier and simpler to do, since we just bound it with bias organdy strips—that being her idea. And you didn't know I could sew? I always made our doll clothes on the sewing machine. And that has really been a long time ago!

A. Tuberosa is a native American wild flower of the milkweed family having tuberous roots, and from my earliest memory in Nebraska has been called "Butterfly Weed" — which is understandable because the butterflies just adore it. The showiest of all the native milkweeds, it thrives in dry, sandy soil, growing from one to three feet in height and is either erect or sprawling in habit.

It is also called orange milkweed and "Pleurisy Root" which leads me to suspect that the Indians used the roots to assuage the sharp, discomforting pains of

Being Kiddled?

Blair, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: What a "Zany" World we live in . . . or is it the people? A political party achieved victory in the last national election on the basis of protecting us from Communism and Communists. This propaganda prevailed until two months ago.

We have been told, for months and years that the Russian Communists were bent on world dominance . . . no mistake. This week, Mr. Eisenhower, in a happy mood says he is convinced now that they want only peace.

And what are we simple mortals in the good old ultra-conservative, provincial, Republican middle west, doing? We are treating, like heroes, a group of hand picked Russians, purporting to be farm leaders and farmers, while rushing to shake them by the hand.

Nothing will come from Geneva but well filled bellies and some new international spy stories.

DEWEY NEMETZ Minimum Wage Law

Lincoln, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: Why can't the Legislature pass a bill concerning wage-hours among laborers working over 40 hours? The one-dollar-per-hour minimum was passed in Congress. Why can't Nebraska pass a law making every factory pay overtime to wage earners? Some do and some don't get overtime. How does Lincoln get by? Other small towns pay overtime for work beyond the 40 hours. A law concerning 55 hours a week and no overtime would be helpful to the poor laborers in some of these factories here.

Soldier And Mother

Lincoln, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: I read the letter from the worried mother and I know just what she is going through, but hope that she will trust in God and pray constantly for the soldier boy who seems to have lost his way. He probably doesn't realize what his mother has suffered for him, nor that he is losing friends by being so disagreeable, with no kind words at home. No woman wants a companion who is so grouchy and says such unkind things. How many soldiers have no mothers.

I wonder how boys feel to see mothers smoke, drink and be out in public in scanty dress. Would they be proud to say, "That's my mother"? I may be old-fashioned but these are not the days of Adam and Eve.

Let's all pray for this worried mother and her son.

I've never seen Rose-of-Sharon so full of bloom as this summer. This shrub is not a rose at all but belongs to the mallow family (which Virgil called Hibiscus) and its scientific name is Hibiscus, syriacus. Closely related to hollyhocks, cotton, and other species of Hibiscus which its lavender, pink, rose or white blooms strikingly resemble, Rose-of-Sharon is much favored in Lincoln for its shiny, fancy-edged leaves and abundant blooms in summer heat.

A Heated Argument On A Water Heater

Life would not be nearly so complicated without automatic water heaters.

There are two things about water heaters that puzzle me. The first is why so many people call them hot water heaters. My wife does. Let something go wrong with the gadget, and she will announce, "There is nothing but cold water coming out of the hot water heater."

I have pointed out to her in vain that it would make far more sense to call the thing a water heater hot, or a water heater warm, thus making the "hot" or "warm" a sort of technical qualification describing the relative efficiency of the heater. To call it a hot water heater, I argue, is to indicate a built-in worthlessness, since what's the use of heating water that is already hot?

She just looks at me and asks, "Wouldn't it sound awfully silly to go around talking about a hot-water-heater-hot?" If you knew my wife, you would know that this is the time to abandon the subject, because within five minutes of brisk argument she would have you calling it a thermo-aqualer temperature booster doodad on activated gaseous motivation, and you'd both have to admit that it's simpler to call it a hot water heater.

The second thing that puzzles me about a water heater is how to get a bath before everybody else uses all the hot water. There are four in our family, not including two dogs, and it seems that every time I take a bath, everyone in the family — including the two dogs, this time — has had a bath immediately prior to my entering into the shower.

U.S. DROPS TRY TO KICK OUT HAYMES

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Justice Department Monday abandoned its effort to deport crooner Dick Haymes.

A spokesman said it had decided not to appeal a ruling several weeks ago by U. S. Dist. Judge Burnita S. Matthews in favor of Haymes.

Judge Matthews ruled that Haymes never left the United States when he went to Hawaii in May, 1953, to woo actress Rita Hayworth, now his wife.

The Justice Department had contended Haymes' return from Hawaii was barred by the immigration laws.

The government has been trying to deport Haymes, a native of Argentina, since March 22, 1954, when a special inquiry officer of the Immigration Service issued a deportation order against him.

The government had contended Haymes in 1944 claimed exemption from military service as a neutral and that this made him ineligible for citizenship and subject to deportation.

Drownings Claim Four Lives; Road Crashes Kill Two

Five Of Six Victims Under 20 Years Old

By The Associated Press
Four drownings have been reported in Nebraska for the week-end just closed.
Two other violent deaths resulted from automobile accidents.
The drowning victims were:
Gary Lee Davidson, 9, Blue Hill.
Myron Shomshor, 14, Scribner.
Frank Dvorak, Mankato, Minn.
Newell Copeland, 18, North Platte.

Those meeting deaths in highway accidents:
Harry Dean Codner, 3, Gibbon.
Bradley Dean Rush, 3, Anselmo.
Three of the drownings involved persons who went wading to escape the heat.
Gary Lee Davidson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davidson, Blue Hill farmers, went wading with two younger brothers in a farm pond and got into deep water.
The boy's father, working in a nearby field, recovered his body and the Blue Hill rescue squad was called at once, but could not revive the boy.

Myron Shomshor, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shomshor, Scribner farmers, was wading in Maple Creek about nine miles south west of Scribner when he floundered in water too deep for him.

Pal Sought Help
His companion, Raymond Allen Gutchow, 14, started out on his bicycle for help, found no one home at the first place he stopped. He started out again and met Wayne Christensen on the road.

Christensen went back to the home where the boy had stopped and called the Scribner rescue squad. Rescue squad chief Fred Herboldsheim said young Shomshor's body was recovered in a matter of minutes from eight feet of water, and artificial respiration was administered until a physician came and pronounced the boy dead.

Frank Dvorak, a Mankato, Minn., farmer in his early 30s, drowned in a farm lake about six miles northwest of Prague.

None Could Swim
Dvorak had been visiting relatives near Prague and gone fishing with six other men. None of the party could swim.
Sheriff Joe Davis said Dvorak waded into the lake, got into deep water and went under. His body was recovered about two hours afterwards.

Newell Copeland, 18, North Platte, drowned when he toppled into a cistern as he sought to drink from a windmill lead-in pipe.

Copeland and a companion, Henderson Galbreath, 17, had been hunting and stopped at the cistern on the farm of K. L. Highbarger, 20 miles southeast of North Platte.
When Copeland lost his balance and fell, Galbreath tossed him the end of a piece of wire and ran for help. He returned to find the wire broken and Copeland disappeared from view.
Copeland's body was recovered later.

In Front Of Home
Harry Dean Codner, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Codner of Gibbon, was killed when he was struck by a car on the street in front of his home.
Members of the family said the boy ran from the curb and the accident was unavoidable. They said the auto driver, Paul Bundy of Gibbon, was driving slowly.
The child is survived by his parents, two sisters and a brother.
Three-year-old Bradley Dean Rush was killed when the car in which he was riding went out of control and rolled into a ditch on a county road just west of Anselmo.
The State Safety Patrol said the driver of the car was Fred Rush, 71, of Anselmo.

Addington Admits Burglary Attempt

Donald Lee Addington, 29, of 920 So. 18th has pleaded guilty in Lancaster District Court to the attempted burglary of the Dutch Mill Drive-In last June 25.

Addington was caught in the building by its owner, Richard C. Taylor, when Taylor laid for the intruder after missing money from the cash register previous nights. Judge Paul White deferred sentence pending an investigation by the adult probation officer.

Addington, a city bus driver, had been employed at the Dutch Mill for three months prior to the burglary.

ward cracking the legislative logjam which threatens to delay adjournment.

Mr. Eisenhower asked for expansion of the reserves to make the goal of 2,900,000 men obtainable by July 1, 1959.

But Congress lengthened the span, possibly by two years. This was done by exempting present veterans and men now in the armed forces from compulsory reserve training.

The compulsory training provision affects men who enlist or are drafted after the bill becomes law.

Features of Bill

Features of the bill include:

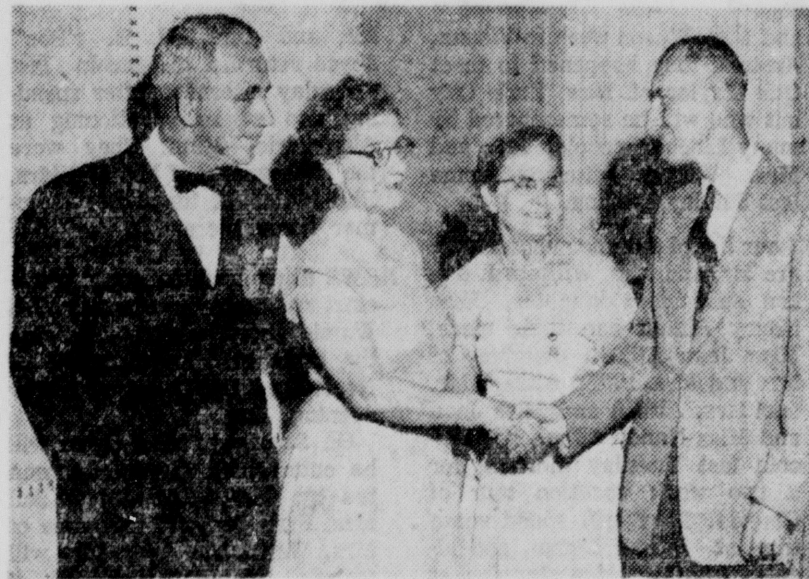

1. Future servicemen will have a total military obligation of six years, which would consist of active-duty time plus whatever remains to fill out their "ready reserve" obligation.
2. Youth aged 17½ to 18 years can volunteer for three to six months of training, with the remainder of their eight-year obligation to be served in the reserve.
3. Reserve service consists of one night each week of drill or other military training for 48 weeks a year, plus 17 days at a summer camp. Those unable to take weekly drills could take a 30-day camp period instead.
4. Men who decline to carry out their reserve obligations could be inducted for 45 days active service a year. They would be subject to court-martial if they sought to dodge induction.
5. The President would be authorized to call up for active service one million men in the ready reserve in event of national emergency. This would affect men who served between June 19, 1951, and the date of enactment of the reserve bill. However, these men are not required to take weekly drills or attend summer camps.

The legislation provides various methods by which ex-servicemen can work out their reserve obligations.

Senate Optimistic About Saturday Adjournment

... House May Need Extra Days

WASHINGTON (INS) — Acting Senate majority leader Earle C. Clements insisted Monday Congress is still shooting for a Saturday adjournment. But there was less optimism in the House.

Clements and his Senate Democratic policy committee reviewed the legislative situation after their meeting. Clements announced: "The target date for adjournment has not been changed. Our hopes haven't changed either—our finishing Saturday night."

The Kentucky Democrat said Senate leaders "have no information" from the House that would alter this estimate. House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex) told reporters the House is still trying to meet the July 30 adjournment date but thought it might possibly take a couple of extra days to wind up.

Clements made it pretty clear he does not expect final congressional action on major bills other than pending appropriation measures, conference reports, and the highway and housing bills.

He all but ruled out the possibility of action on the school construction and gas bills. The floor chief said of the school bill: "I have every confidence that there will be a school construction bill passed in the 84th Congress. You must remember that this session is only half of the 84th Congress. There is a very important half to come."

He was referring to the presidential election year of 1956, when the second session will be held. Both Democrats and Republicans feel there is more political advantage in passing the school bill at that time than there would be in trying to rush one through now.

'Possibility'

The same is true of the social security extension measure, which has passed the House and is now in the Senate Finance Committee. No Senate action is planned on this bill.

House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex) after conferring with Clements (D-Ky), said adjournment Saturday was a "possibility, but not a probability."

Some leaders fear that if the session runs into August, it may be difficult to bring it to an early end. Hence the pressure on a July 30 adjournment, which was the target date of Senate Democratic leader Lyndon Johnson of Texas, still recuperating from a July 2 heart attack in Bethesda Naval Hospital.

EMERGENCY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Brownell told House Speaker Rayburn the national emergency proclaimed in 1950 is still in effect. That means Congress can do business legally after July 31 if it wants to.

Brownell gave Rayburn the information in a brief letter replying to a query made last week. The speaker asked the attorney general to confirm the continued existence of the emergency proclaimed by former President Truman.

Governor At State Government Meet

Gov. Victor Anderson, along with several state senators and other state officials, Monday was at Mackinac Island, Mich., for a midwest regional conference of the Council of State Governments.

Tuesday morning the governor will lead a panel discussion on highway problems.

He was expected back in Lincoln Wednesday.

State Irrigation Chief Dan Jones Jr. is also attending.

Consultation Urged

TOKYO (Tuesday) (AP) — Peiping radio demanded that the Formosa question and Red China's entry into the United Nations "be settled through consultation among the countries concerned." A broadcast heard here was not commenting, however, on the meeting at Geneva Aug. 1 between U.S. and Red Chinese ambassadors, announced jointly earlier both in Peiping and Washington.

This snarling Lincoln Air Force Base guard dog isn't kidding. "Mr. Black" and his handler, A. Carlos Everett, show what happens when the dog gets annoyed, and he gets annoyed at the slightest provocation.

Mean, 1-Man Watchdogs Take Guard Duty At Lincoln Base

By BARC BAYLEY
Star Staff Writer

The dogs have gone to Lincoln Air Force Base—to twist an old phrase slightly.

But they're not like "Old Shep" or "Rover."

They're mean, doggone mean. They're that way on purpose. They guard highly-secret areas at the base.

The Air Force brought 13 of the big German Shepherds, along with their handlers, to Lincoln Monday. The men and dogs just completed eight weeks training at the Army K-9 center at Ft. Carson, Colo.

The animals will have no truck with anyone but the handler with whom they trained. Even though they see the other handlers every day, they remain one-man dogs.

Dog Rests, Too

"If I go on leave," S. Sgt. Manuel Ornelas said, "my dog just stays in his kennel and doesn't work until I get back."

The big shepherds are not trained to kill, rather to grab an enemy's arm and immobilize him. One look at such a dog headed for them would immobilize most people.

Not to be taken lightly at any time, the dogs are less ferocious when they wear the "off-duty" collar. It's a choke-chain for obedience training.

When they have on a stout leather collar the big dogs know they're ready for action.

"The dogs are never worked as guards when they have the chain on," Lt. Leonard Davis, kennel commander, said.

To overcome the natural friendliness of dogs, the animals are "agitated" several times a week to sharpen their attack. A well-padded trainer is the usual victim. Also as part of their training, the

2 Million Suit Filed By Star Elizabeth Scott

... Magazine Cited

LOS ANGELES (INS) — Screen star Elizabeth Scott filed a $2,500,000 damage suit against "Confidential" magazine and its editors Monday on charges that she was libeled and degraded in a current article.

The actress' attorney, Jerry Giesler, alleged that the article depicted Miss Scott in word and picture as being guilty of "highly offensive, illegal, and immoral conduct with young women." He added:

"The portrayal of Miss Scott in the magazine article is most vicious, slanderous, indecent, libelous and offensive. The article is entirely untrue and without foundation in fact."

"To preserve her good name, Miss Scott intends to follow through her action to bring the editors and publishers and all those responsible for the story to full account."

Reputations

Giesler, who represents three other celebrities in multi-million dollar libel suits against so-called scandal and expose magazines, said the suits were filed not only to protect the reputations of his clients but to call attention to the increased publication of such articles. The noted Hollywood attorney declared further:

"It is our hope that some government agency will step in and put a stop to the publication and distribution of such scandal sheets."

Texas Officials Pledge Banned Bawdy Houses

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — "Every bawdy house in Galveston will be closed tonight and stay closed," Police Chief W. J. Burns announced Monday.

This followed a conference between Dist. Atty. Marcene Johnson Jr. and Police Commissioner Walter Johnston. They conferred on complaints by the Galveston Ministerial Assn. and a report by the American Social Hygiene Assn. "If they don't close we will raid them all in cooperation with the police department," Johnson said. "I'm glad they decided to do it," commented Mayor George Roy Clough, who advocates open but segregated houses of prostitution. "It takes a lot of responsibility off of me. I will say this, it's going to be a hell of a job keeping them closed."

Big Pre-Fab Coming

CHICAGO (AP) — The largest prefabricated building ever to be erected is scheduled to go up in Chicago. The clear-span building will look like an oversized quonset hut and will house sporting events and conventions. The 17 million dollar structure, will seat 25,000.

An East-West Gap Remains —Adenauer

MUERREN, Switzerland (INS)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said Monday a "wide gap" still remains between Soviet and Western points of view after the Geneva conference.

He called for "patience" in the immediate period ahead as the Big Four powers try to settle their cold war problems, including German unification.

Adenauer appraised results of the "summit" meeting in Geneva at a news conference held at Muernen, his Swiss vacation retreat.

He said the conference succeeded in opening the way to a series of additional East-West meetings needed to ease international tension.

Adenauer added: "Easing of world tension requires painstaking devotion of all concerned and the hopeful patience of all nations."

In Bonn, the West German opposition Socialist Party hailed results of the Geneva conference as "a significant contribution" towards liquidating the cold war.

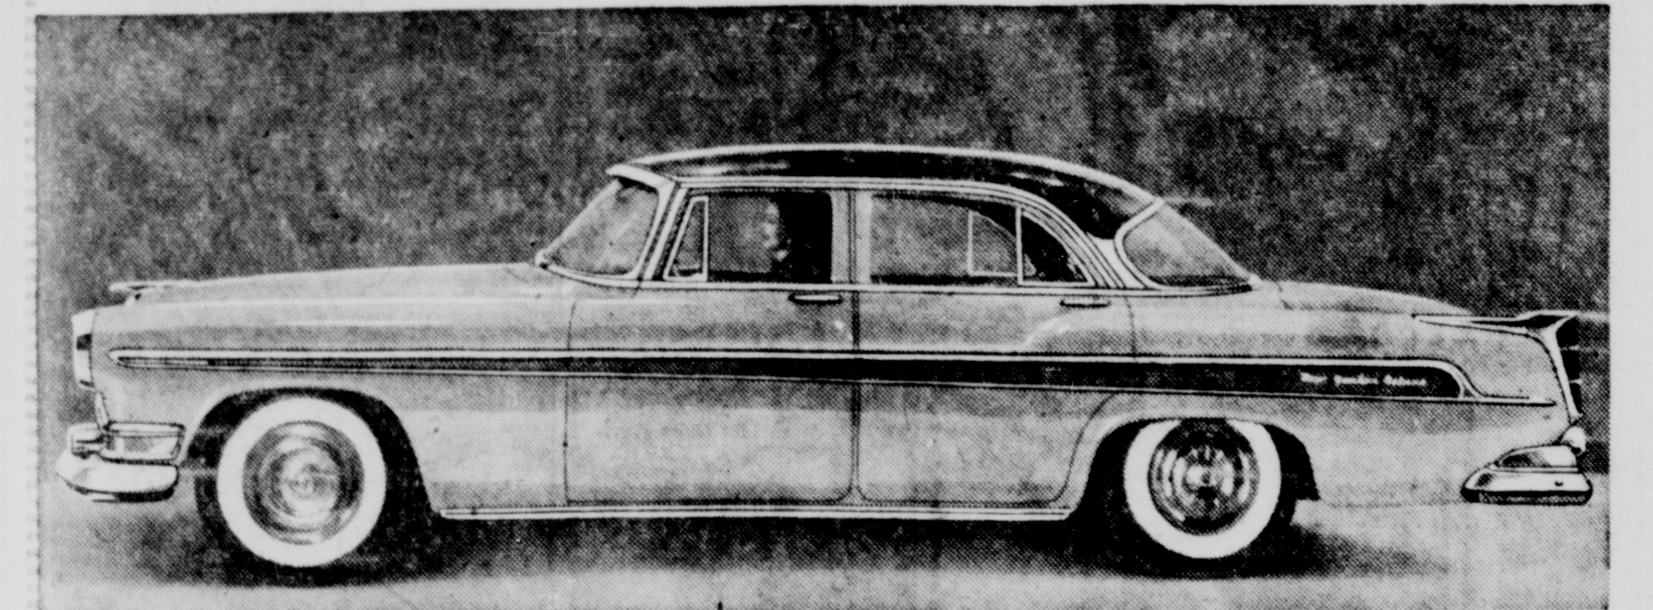

Adenauer indicated he will go to Moscow for talks to restore normal German-Soviet relations before the October meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers, which was arranged by the East-West chiefs of state. He said it would be "impolite" to wait until after the ministers' conference before accepting the Soviet invitation.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you. # Trainer Begg: 'No More Hurricane'

... But He'd Follow Him To Trinidad

NEW YORK (AP)—In the oven heat of Stillman's gym, Trainer Freddie Brown took a quick chill at mention of Hurricane Jackson in training camp.

"He's over in the country with his mother at Summit (N.J.). But no Hurricane in the country for me. No more. I had three weeks of it. We've got another fellow over there handling him until Whitey (Trainer Whitey Binstein) takes over on Sunday. I'll see him in Syracuse."

The Hurricane man is fighting ex-champion Ezzard Charles at Syracuse, Wednesday Aug. 3, his toughest match to date.

"Greenwood Lake wasn't too bad, except Hurricane and Floyd Patterson wanted to shoot them 'mouses' all the time," said Brown. "Another thing bad was that the bus to New York went right by the front door. Four days before the Nino Valdes fight, he packed his bags and took the night bus to New York. What do you suppose he was doing when we caught up with him. Riding a motorcycle."

"The last time he was at Summit was before the Charley Norkus match. I got in a fight with some lady about letting him ride a horse. 'Will you please not let this fellow ride your horse?' I ask her nice and polite. I tell her this fellow is a fighter and if he falls off that horse and hurts himself, his manager will be suing for damages. She don't like it and the next thing I know she sends her husband around. But we finally talked sense to him."

Blame On Trainer

"Imagine a fighter, four or five days before a fight, going riding horseback. Who do you think would get blamed if anything happened to him? You're right, the trainer."

"I handled Tony Janiro and he was a pretty tough guy to handle. But this guy, wow. Don't get me wrong. He's okay in the fights. But those training camps are something to write a book about."

Jackson's diet gives Brown more trouble. He insists he doesn't like steak. Most fighters can't get enough.

"He was boxing some guy in the garden, a southpaw, and we wanted to be good to him," said Brown. "We took him over to a steak house for dinner and he hollered blue murder. He said the steak was no good and cost him the fight although he got out of it with a draw."

Didn't Want Steak

"One night I took him out to dinner and ordered chopped sirloin. He yelled blue murder again, told me he didn't want no steak. After I told him it was hamburger, it was okay."

"Sometimes he gets mad at me and clams up, won't say a word. All I do is walk away from him. In an hour or so he'll be back, following me around. He can't stay mad long."

"If he beats Charles and ever gets to fight Rocky Marciano, I'll go with him to camp—even if it's in Trinidad."

Veteran, 18-Year-Old Tie For Medalist

CHICAGO (AP)—Tall Carol Dyringer, a veteran of 10 tries without success in this meet, and 18-year-old Willie Smith, shared medal honors with par-matching 75s in Monday's qualifying round of the 55th Women's Western Amateur Golf Tournament.

Miss Dyringer, former Ohio State amateur champion from Tiffin, Ohio, had the most consistent round as 114 gals from throughout the country battled for 32 match play berths in the week-long tourney.

The Ohio lady exactly matched par for both nines of 36-37 for Olympic Fields' tree-studded, rolling green.

Miss Smith, playing only her second Western Amateur, reversed Miss Dyringer's figures with an out-going 37, one under par, returning in 38.

Miss Smith, Mexico Open champion at 14, now registers from St. Clair, Mich. She was low amateur in the recent Western Open.

Bypassed Meet

The tourney is without a defending champion since the 1954 winner, Claire Doran of Lakewood, Ohio, bypassed the meet to prepare for her imminent wedding.

A stroke behind at 76 was Virginia Denney of Chicago with 39-37.

Small College Halfback To Grid Hall Of Fame

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP)—Cliff Battles, a halfback at Little West Virginia Wesleyan in 1929-31, was one of 16 players who along with five coaches were named Monday to football's Hall of Fame.

The new list, announced by the Honors Court headed by Bill Cunningham of Boston, brings to 127 the number of players and coaches who have been honored in three elections.

Battles, a brilliant all-around performer, is the first small college player to make the grade.

In Washington, Battles, informed of his selection, said "That's terrific." He said it was "particularly gratifying at this late date, and considering I came from a small school."

Battles, who moved to Washington from Detroit a little over a year ago, now represents two firms on government contracts, C. W. Smith Engineering Co., and F. L. Jacobs Mfg. Co., both of Detroit.

The 83 players and 39 coaches chosen will have their names enshrined in the proposed Hall of Fame building to be constructed here when funds are available.

The five new coaches named are:

Wallace Wade, coach at Vanderbilt, Alabama and Duke.

Matty Bell, whose career included coaching assignments at Southern Methodist, Haskell Institute, Carroll College, Texas Christian and Texas A&M.

Bernie Bierman, whose Minnesota teams were once among the most powerful in the nation.

E. N. Robinson, who coached Brown University 22 years through three different tenures.

George E. Little, who coached at Ohio State, Cincinnati, Miami (Ohio), Michigan and Wisconsin.

Hundreds of candidates were screened by the Honors Court, a body composed of representatives from throughout the country. Players must have been out of college 10 years to be eligible.

Mrs. Maurice Glick of Baltimore came in with a pair of 39s for a 78, a stroke ahead of Mrs. Mary Patton Janssen, Charlottesville, Va.; Barbara McIntire, the Rollins College shooter from Toledo, Ohio, and Mrs. Scott Probasco, the former Petty Howell from Chattanooga, Tenn., all bracketed at 79.

An unheralded contender, Marjorie Burns of Greensboro, N.C., stroked a creditable 40-38—78, while another sub-80 shooter was Berridge Long of Huntington, W. Va., who carded 40-39—79.

Globe, Ben's Win In Elks

Globe went nine innings to beat Anderson Hardware and Ben's beat Green 6-2 with the aid of a timely homer by Ken Briggs in Elks League games at Antelope Park Monday night.

Globe broke an 8-8 tie in the ninth when Gary Smith singled and stole second, then scored on Brad Warner's poke into left field. Don Wenzl, who went all the way for Anderson, was the loser and reliever Phil Miller the winner. Miller gave one hit in five innings after replacing Bill Frappia.

Briggs' homer in the sixth inning tied the Ben's-Green game 2-2 and Ben's moved ahead on singles by Bill Stevens and Ed Haynes, plus Green errors.

Globe plays Macks at 6:30 p.m. tonight and Ben's meets Lawlor's in the nightcap.

As Diamond Greats Watch, Williams Belts One Out

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—Ted Williams blasted a two-run homer in the first inning Monday for the big blow which gave the Boston Red Sox a 4-2 decision over the Milwaukee Braves in the Baseball Hall of Fame exhibition game.

Dick Brodowski, returning serviceman who will be 23-years-old Tuesday, pitched the full game for Boston, limiting the Braves to nine scattered hits. Brodowski has yet to start an American League game this season.

In the first inning, Chet Nichols, Milwaukee starter and loser, hit Faye Thronberry with a pitched ball. On his next pitch he almost hit Williams.

On the second pitch to Williams the bat slipped out of Ted's hand and struck a first base fan, Ellis Kotary of Clayville, N. Y. who suffered a split second finger on his right hand. Williams started to go to the aid of the fan but was called back to the batter's box. On the fourth pitch he sent a Nichols outside pitch over the left field fence, scoring Thronberry.

Kids Whistle When 'Hall' Takes DiMag

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—Baseball's immortal Hall of Fame increased its membership to 80 Monday when it opened its gates to six newcomers ranging from 69-year-old Frank (Home Run) Baker to 40-year-old Joltin' Joe DiMaggio.

The select six, which also included former major league greats Leo (Gabby) Hartnett, Arthur (Dazzy) Vance, Ted Lyons and Ray Schalk, were honored in a special 45-minute ceremony presided over by Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick.

Hartnett, 54, who caught 100 or more games 12 years for the Chicago Cubs and finished with more home runs (236) than any other catcher, expressed the feeling of all six when he was presented with a replica of the plaque which will hang in the Hall of Fame.

"This is one day in my life I will never forget," Hartnett said, his tomato-red face showing his deep emotion. "It's a wonderful feeling to be an immortal in the baseball Hall of Fame."

DiMaggio, perhaps the best known and his feats the best remembered because of his comparative youth, received the biggest applause. There were loud whistles from youngsters sitting in trees across the street from the red brick Hall of Fame museum.

The last of the sextet to be presented, DiMaggio glowed with pride as Commissioner Frick recounted his diamond exploits, including his amazing 56-game hitting streak, his participation in nine world championship New York Yankees clubs, his three most valuable player awards, his 11 all-star team nominations and his .325 batting average and 361 home runs through 13 seasons.

"This is a happy day for me," Joe said feelingly. "It's a long step since that day 20 years ago when I was riding to St. Petersburg with Tony Lazzeri and Frank Crosetti for my first spring training trip with the Yankees."

"They asked me to drive the last 200 miles and I said sheepishly 'I don't drive.' I thought that was the end of my career."

DiMaggio told the crowd he had tried to pattern himself after the late Lou Gehrig.

"I watched every move made on and off the field," Joe said. "Also, I'd like to thank Joe McCarthy, my first major league manager, for the early training he gave me."

Ike's Report To Congress Mixture Of Hope, Caution

... Lawmakers Pleased With Briefing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower told leaders of Congress Monday it looks like the Russians are ready to negotiate for world peace in a new "atmosphere of friendliness."

In a generally optimistic report on the Big Four conference, the President also was quoted as having told the legislators that no secret agreements of any kind were made at Geneva last week.

Secretary of State Dulles followed this up by telling newsmen: "There's nothing to conceal about this conference."

Solons Briefed

Vice President Nixon and 24 members of the House and Senate gathered at the White House for the briefing Eisenhower and Dulles talked to them for nearly an hour and a half.

Their report was described as a mixture of hope and caution. Both Republicans and Democrats praised it for its frankness, and Sen. Knowland of California, the Senate's GOP leader, gave this summary:

"The situation growing out of the conference is hopeful but the problems ahead are not discounted."

While the meeting was in progress, Peiping radio and the State Department announced that American and Red Chinese ambassadors will get together in Geneva next Monday to discuss the repatriation of citizens and other matters. There was a discussion of this at the White House conference, James C. Hagerty, the President's press secretary, reported without elaboration.

Dulles Reports

Dulles told newsmen he made a full report at the White House and "talked very frankly." In addition to saying there was "nothing to conceal" about the Geneva conference, Dulles said he thought it was on the plus side but added:

"The real proving and testing round will come later when we come to grips with the problems."

Hagerty issued this statement after the briefing:

Sincere Desire

"The President expressed the belief that the outstanding feature of the meeting was the apparently sincere desire expressed by the Soviet delegation to discuss world problems in the future in an atmosphere of friendliness and a willingness to sit down together to work out differences."

"The President added that this, of course, is a hopeful development but quite naturally does not of itself warrant any relaxation of the mutual security measures we and our Allies of the free world are now pursuing."

New Atmosphere

Chairman Bridges (R-NH) of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said the President told the congressional leaders he is confident future negotiations with the Russians will proceed in a "wholly different atmosphere" than they have in the past.

Rep. Amden of Illinois, House Republican whip, told the House in a brief speech later that "prospects for stable peace are now brighter than in a decade."

"To be sure," he said, "it will take time, many more meetings and much tedious work, perhaps sometimes trying for our patience, for a practical solution of specific problems and conflicts of interest."

Khrushchev Top Man

Others who were present said Eisenhower confided that he believes Communist party leader Khrushchev is the top man among the Russian leaders, although Premier Bulganin was the official spokesman at the Big Four meeting.

The President also was reported to have told the congressional delegation he does not believe the Russians will accept his proposal for reciprocal inspection of American and Soviet military establishments. This idea has wrought some head-shaking in Congress, with Knowland and Bridges among those regarding it with askance.

"A very statesmanlike job," Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) called it.

Sen. Morse (D-Ore.), noting that he has criticized the President sometimes in the past, said "I am proud of the course of action he followed" at Geneva.

Putnam Is Approved As General

Col. Claude E. Putnam, commander of the 818th Air Division at Lincoln Air Force Base, has been promoted to brigadier general, it was announced Monday.

Gen. Putnam is now the ranking officer at the base.

He was nominated for promotion by the President in late June, and the nomination has been confirmed by the Senate.

Gen. Putnam, a veteran pilot, was graduated as an Army Air Corps second lieutenant in 1938.

During World War II he served with the Ferry Command, 8th Bomber Command, and later in Great Britain as a squadron operations officer with the 8th Air Force.

First assigned to Strategic Air Command at Fairchild AFB in California, he led his B-29 group on their first strike against the North Koreans shortly after the Korean outbreak.

Upon returning from the Korean fighting, he was assigned as deputy director of plans at SAC headquarters in Omaha. From there he assumed command of the 818th at Lincoln last Oct. 11.

A command pilot, he has been awarded the British Distinguished Flying Cross and the Korean Service Medal. Born in Jacksboro, Tex., he is a graduate of the University of Texas.

KHRUSHCHEV: REICH ROLE IS UNITY MUST

BERLIN (AP)—Soviet Communist party boss Nikita S. Khrushchev told East Germans Monday that Russia never will accept any reunification scheme drafted without German participation.

"The German question cannot be solved without the Germans themselves," he said. "The Soviet Union never will join in any solution without the participation of the Germans."

Visiting Germany
Khrushchev and Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin are visiting East Germany on their way home from the Geneva summit conference. Monday they toured Saxony, where Khrushchev addressed a group of bridge construction workers near Halle.

His statement reaffirmed the Soviet demand at Geneva that both East and West German representatives join the Big Four foreign ministers when they meet to continue negotiations on the German issue in October.

Khrushchev was quoted by East German government radio as saying the solution of the German question is "part" of the problem of European security.

Nebraskan To Attend Annual IFYE Meeting

Americans in Perspective (What Makes Americans Tick?) is the conference theme. Ninety-five IFYE's from 26 countries and nearly 200 former American IFYE's will attend the conference.

The four young men from India who have been visiting various farm homes in the state will be replaced by four more from the same country following the conference.

A girl from Northern Ireland also is scheduled to visit in Nebraska this year, Charles Martin, assistant state leader of young men and women (YMW), announced.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. said the directors of the Joshua Monument National Bank of Twenty-nine Palms voted to close and turn the institution over to the comptroller of the currency for liquidation.

There was no immediate indication what percentage of total deposits was affected or how many depositors, if any, may suffer. Deposits are protected by federal insurance up to $10,000 for each depositor.

President Joseph P. Wasserburg sobbed as he told a newsman: "It's a terrible blow. It just broke our hearts. I don't want anyone to be hurt."

He declined further comment.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Stella Coats of Pasadena, Calif., and Mrs. Anna Nickell of Mobile, Ala.; and two brothers, Drew Jamieson and Robert Jamieson, both of Beatrice.

Beatrice, Neb. — Private funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at the Harman Mortuary for Miss Lutie H. Jamieson, 65, lifetime resident of Beatrice. She died in a Lincoln hospital.

He added that agriculture has not kept pace with rapidly changing conditions because of the "price straight jacket."

"Agriculture must fit production to markets while at the same time exercising effort at further market development," he said. Better quality products and more effective merchandising are two main avenues to reduction of surpluses, he added, and these are two of the goals of the flexible support price system.

Truman said he had been requested by the mayors of Philadelphia, New York and Pittsburgh to comment on the current bill.

STAN DELAPLANE'S

POSTCARD

Gallatin's in Monterey, Calif., is a magnificent restaurant in an old Spanish adobe under antique spreading trees. The ceilings are beamed and low and candlelit. The wine comes from a small vineyard in the Santa Cruz hills.

It is surrounded by history. Fremont lived in the house across the street during the conquest of California and Robert Louis Stevenson held off the bay chill with brandy close by.

It serves martinis in generous glasses and the Carmel Valley chicken is worth a long trip.

A tall gentleman in an old-fashioned dinner jacket was playing the zither, a rarity in itself. After awhile, he came over and introduced himself as Mr. Franz Gottschalk who became famous playing the theme song in "The Third Man."

It is a fame he is trying to live down.

"The music of 'The Third Man' theme was Vienna cafe music. It was a high point of the picture—a haunting melody of the true Vienna."

Mr. Gottschalk said fame burst upon him the minute the song was released.

"Before that I played the zither, nothing more. As soon as the song swept Europe, I was rushed to Hollywood."

"Of 15,000 members of the Musicians' Union in Los Angeles, I was the only zither player. I was the toast of the night clubs. It was chic to have me at parties."

"Over and over again I played 'The Third Man' theme. Naturally I grew tired of it."

Mr. Gottschalk passed his zither-playing hand over his artistic brow.

"Can you imagine what it is like? The same song over and over and over? Tum - de - dum - de - dum - de - dum . . ."

"I spoke to my agent about it. 'I can play other songs,' I said. 'When I played in Vienna my repertoire was wide. Beautiful songs filled with romance and authentic as sachtortle mit schlag.'"

"The agent looked alarmed. He glanced about furtively to see if I had been overheard. 'Hush,' he said. 'Don't admit it. What the customers wish to hear is 'The Third Man.' You will ruin yourself.'"

"The pay was good," said Mr. Gottschalk, "and I had no desire to ruin myself."

The years passed and always the same request.

"Do you know how long that has been?"

I said I did indeed. "The Third Man" theme hit Europe in 1950. At a Roman restaurant called Mario's, beside the Roman wall, I spent a tearful evening pressing large lira notes on a violinist who played it for me.

The violin was excellent and accompanied by a rather tinny piano.

When I ran out of lira, I plied them with dollar bills. I really liked that song. They were looking rather haggard when I left. Rich but haggard.

"Multiply your evening a thousand times," said Franz Gottschalk, "and you have the story of my life during the past five years."

"I got down on my knees to night club owners and managers of cocktail lounges. 'Let me only try something else,' I begged. 'Play 'The Third Man' theme,' they said. People are eating it up."

"Fortunately the London record had been made with another side, 'The Cafe Mozart Waltz.' That was my only variation. Requests for 'The Third Man' outnumbered the other one hundred to one."

"When I was desperate, I tried variations on the tune. I hoped to disguise it and slip off into something else. But they only made me play it over again. 'Play that 'Third Man' thing,' they would say when I finished the variation."

Mr. Gottschalk thinks he is tagged with the song for life.

"But I truly do have others. I played for many years in the Vienna cafes and naturally the customers did not want to hear one song. Would you care to hear some?"

I said I would be delighted. The bartender, however, was flagging for attention. He said a gentleman at the end of the bar had a request.

Mr. Gottschalk did not wait to hear the name of the request. He simply gave me a sad look and went back to the zither. Dum - de - dum - de - dum. Dum - de - dum - dum . . .

STAN DELAPLANE'S

POSTCARD

Gallatin's in Monterey, Calif., is a magnificent restaurant in an old Spanish adobe under antique spreading trees. The ceilings are beamed and low and candlelit. The wine comes from a small vineyard in the Santa Cruz hills.

It is surrounded by history. Fremont lived in the house across the street during the conquest of California and Robert Louis Stevenson held off the bay chill with brandy close by.

It serves martinis in generous glasses and the Carmel Valley chicken is worth a long trip.

A tall gentleman in an old-fashioned dinner jacket was playing the zither, a rarity in itself. After awhile, he came over and introduced himself as Mr. Franz Gottschalk who became famous playing the theme song in "The Third Man." It is a fame he is trying to live down.

"The music of 'The Third Man' theme was Vienna cafe music. It was a high point of the picture—a haunting melody of the true Vienna."

Mr. Gottschalk said fame burst upon him the minute the song was released.

"Before that I played the zither, nothing more. As soon as the song swept Europe, I was rushed to Hollywood."

"Of 15,000 members of the Musicians' Union in Los Angeles, I was the only zither player. I was the toast of the night clubs. It was chic to have me at parties."

"Over and over again I played 'The Third Man' theme. Naturally I grew tired of it."

Mr. Gottschalk passed his zither-playing hand over his artistic brow.

"Can you imagine what it is like? The same song over and over and over? Tum - de - dum - de - dum - de - dum . . .

"I spoke to my agent about it. 'I can play other songs,' I said 'When I played in Vienna my repertoire was wide. Beautiful songs filled with romance and authentic as sacherorte mit schlag.'"

"The agent looked alarmed. He glanced about furtively to see if I had been overheard. 'Hush,' he said. 'Don't admit it. What the customers wish to hear is 'The Third Man.' You will ruin yourself.'"

"The pay was good," said Mr. Gottschalk, "and I had no desire to ruin myself."

The years passed and always the same request.

"Do you know how long that has been?"

I said I did indeed. "The Third Man" theme hit Europe in 1950. At a Roman restaurant called Mario's, beside the Roman wall, I spent a tearful evening pressing large lira notes on a violinist who played it for me.

The violin was excellent and accompanied by a rather tiny piano.

When I ran out of lira, I plied them with dollar bills. I really liked that song. They were looking rather haggard when I left. Rich but haggard.

"Multiply your evening a thousand times," said Franz Gottschalk, "and you have the story of my life during the past five years."

"I got down on my knees to night club owners and managers of cocktail lounges. 'Let me only try something else,' I begged. 'Play 'The Third Man' theme,' they said. People are eating it up."

"Fortunately the London record had been made with another side, 'The Cafe Mozart Waltz.' That was my only variation. Requests for 'The Third Man' outnumbered the other one hundred to one."

"When I was desperate, I tried variations on the tune. I hoped to disguise it and slip off into something else. But they only made me play it over again. 'Play that 'Third Man' thing,' they would say when I finished the variation."

Mr. Gottschalk thinks he is tagged with the song for life.

"But I truly do have others. I played for many years in the Vienna cafes and naturally the customers did not want to hear one song. Would you care to hear some?"

I said I would be delighted. The bartender, however, was flagging for attention. He said a gentleman at the end of the bar had a request.

Mr. Gottschalk did not wait to hear the name of the request. He simply gave me a sad look and went back to the zither. Dum - de - dum - de - dum. Dum - de - dum - dum . . .
